Another very popular style of handle is a crook covered with black taffeta or velvet. This makes a very smart and effective finish to a tartan taffeta popularity and pleasing renown here ast summer she delivered a lecture on "The Star of Bethlehem" before students of the University of London. These bags are of oval students of the University of London. Recently flattering requests have been made to have her lecture to other student bodies and societies.

This reminds me that in glaneing over some American newspapers the other day I saw where "Jack the Clippers' seoundrels were busy robbing young girls of their hair by sneaking up back of them and cutting off their young girls of their hair by sneaking up back of them and cutting off their plaits. There have been many complaints that the same evil is one of the present "dangers of the streets" here. The flends have been operating here during the day, and effort is being made to capture them.

Dressy Little Tallor-Made Costs in Contrast Show Military Talls.

Of quite recent debut, too, are some dressy little tallor-made coats built of vivid-colored cloths. The styles in which these are presented available. vivid-colored cloths. The styles in which these are presented are distinctly fanciful, the longer backs being draped or the corners turned back after the manner of the military coat of olden time. But the fronts are for the most part kept short, and close at the best of long sweeping lapels, sometimes faced with black motre. The accompanying skirt is invariably a contrast—perhaps a black and white check or one of the fancy parti-colored stripes.

Then the mind jumps instinctively to a skirt of white cloth or one of white linen, and even a black cloth or taffeta could be substituted.

Reads Page Regularly.

Dear Editor.—I've been quiet for a long time, but that doesn't mean that I am going to stay quiet. I really intended writing, but—well. I hardly know why I didn't, unless it is because I hate to write. I have been reading the T. D. C. C. every Sunday, and have enloyed it so much. I notice a lot of our old members have stopped contributing. I wonder why. I didn't attend school dast session, so I am not going to enter the contest. I attended the closing to enter the contest. I attended the closing to my little sister's school, and enloyed myself immensely, but as she expects to write you about it, I won't tell, as it wouldn't be interesting to send two stories just alike. I am sending a poem and a small drawing. It has been so ong since I sent anything to the page I hone that these may be lucky enough to find a place. I will bring my letter to a close. With best wishes for editor and members. I am. Your old member.

Dear Editor.—I have just finished reading our page. It is fine—better to-day than common. I was so glad to hear from Samuel Gurthright again. Oh, you don't know how glad I was last Sunday when I saw I had won a prize! I think I have told every one in town about it. Am crazy to know what it will be. Tell the boys I saw a large pine snake in Waynesbore yesterday eve. It was a rouser. A man had it in a box. He took it out and let it wrap around him. He said it would not bite.

My Dear Editor.—I am writing to thank you for my nice prize, also my little brother, Walter, wants to thank you for his. We were so proud of them, but we would like to get a badge, as we have never received one. We sil have a time every Sunday morning seeing which one can get the T. D. C. C. page first. Hope you and all the members will have a pleasant vacation, My school has closed. Well, I will bring my letter to a close by saying good-by.
